TITLE III--TUSKEGEE <<NOTE: 16 USC 461 note [table].>> AIRMEN NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE, ALABAMA

SEC. 301. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this title:

- (1) Historic site.--The term ``historic site'' means the Tuskegee Airmen National Historic Site as established by section 303.
- (2) Secretary.--The term ``Secretary'' means the Secretary of the Interior.
- (3) Tuskegee airmen.--The term ``Tuskegee Airmen'' means the thousands of men and women who were trained at Tuskegee University's Moton Field to serve in America's African-American Air Force units during World War II and those men and women who participate in the Tuskegee Experience today, who are represented by Tuskegee Airmen, Inc.
- (4) Tuskegee university.--The term ``Tuskegee University'' means the institution of higher education by that name located in the State of Alabama and founded by Booker T. Washington in 1881, formerly named Tuskegee Institute.

SEC. 302. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) Findings.--The Congress finds the following:

- (1) The struggle of African-Americans for greater roles in North American military conflicts spans the 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th centuries. Opportunities for African-American participation in the United States military were always very limited and controversial. Quotas, exclusion, and racial discrimination were based on the prevailing attitude in the United States, particularly on the part of the United States military, that African-Americans did not possess the intellectual capacity, aptitude, and skills to be successful fighters.

- 2) As late as the 1940's these perceptions continued within the United States military. Key leaders within the United States Army Air Corps did not believe that African-Americans possessed the capacity to become successful military pilots. After succumbing to pressure exerted by civil rights groups and the black press, the Army decided to train a small number of African-American pilot cadets under special conditions. Although prejudice and discrimination against African-Americans was a national phenomenon, not just a southern trait, it was more intense in the South where it had hardened into rigidly enforced patterns of segregation. Such was the environment where the military chose to locate the training of the Tuskegee Airmen.

- (3) The military selected Tuskegee Institute (now known as Tuskegee University) as a civilian contractor for a variety of reasons. These included the school's existing facilities, engineering and technical instructors, and a climate with ideal flying conditions year round. Tuskegee Institute's strong interest in providing aeronautical training for African-American youths was also an important factor. Students from the school's civilian pilot training program had some of the best test scores when compared to other students from programs across the Southeast.

(4) In 1941 the United States Army Air Corps awarded a contract to Tuskegee Institute to operate a primary flight school at Moton Field. Tuskegee Institute (now known as Tuskegee University) chose an African-American contractor who designed and constructed Moton Field, with the assistance of its faculty and students, as the site for its military pilot training program. <<NOTE: Robert Russa Moton.>> The field was named for the school's second president, Robert Russa Moton. Consequently, Tuskegee Institute was one of a very few American institutions (and the only African-American institution) to own, develop, and control facilities for military flight instruction.

(5) Moton Field, also known as the Primary Flying Field or Airport Number 2, was the only primary flight training facility for African-American pilot candidates in the United States Army Air Corps during World War II. The facility symbolizes the entrance of African-American pilots into the United States Army Air Corps, although on the basis of a policy of segregation that was mandated by the military and institutionalized in the South. The facility also symbolizes the singular role of Tuskegee Institute (Tuskegee University) in providing leadership as well as economic and educational resources to make that entry possible.

(6) The Tuskegee Airmen were the first African-American soldiers to complete their training successfully and to enter the United States Army Air Corps. Almost 1,000 aviators were trained as America's first African-American military pilots. In addition, more than 10,000 military and civilian African-American men and women served as flight instructors, officers, bombardiers, navigators, radio technicians, mechanics, air traffic controllers, parachute riggers, electrical and communications specialists, medical professionals, laboratory assistants, cooks, musicians, supply, firefighting, and transportation personnel.

(7) Although military leaders were hesitant to use the Tuskegee Airmen in combat, the Airmen eventually saw considerable action in North Africa and Europe. Acceptance from United States Army Air Corps units came slowly, but their courageous and, in many cases, heroic performance earned them increased combat opportunities and respect.

(8) <<NOTE: Harry S. Truman.>> The successes of the Tuskegee Airmen proved to the American public that African-Americans, when given the opportunity, could become effective military leaders and pilots. This helped pave the way for desegregation of the military, beginning with President Harry S. Truman's Executive Order 9981 in 1948. The Tuskegee Airmen's success also helped set the stage for civil rights advocates to continue the struggle to end racial discrimination during the civil rights movement of the 1950's and 1960's.

(9) The story of the Tuskegee Airmen also reflects the struggle of African-Americans to achieve equal rights, not only through legal attacks on the system of segregation, but also through the techniques of nonviolent direct action. The members of the 477th Bombardment Group, who staged a nonviolent demonstration to desegregate the officer's club at Freeman Field, Indiana, helped set the pattern for direct action protests popularized by civil rights activists in later decades.

(b) Purposes.--The purposes of this title are the following:

(1) To inspire present and future generations to strive for excellence by understanding and appreciating the heroic legacy of the Tuskegee Airmen, through interpretation and education, and the preservation of cultural resources at Moton Field, which was the site of primary flight training.

(2) To commemorate and interpret--

(A) the impact of the Tuskegee Airmen during World War II;

(B) the training process for the Tuskegee Airmen, including the roles played by Moton Field, other training facilities, and related sites;

(C) the African-American struggle for greater participation in the United States Armed Forces and more significant roles in defending their country;

(D) the significance of successes of the Tuskegee Airmen in leading to desegregation of the United States Armed Forces shortly after World War II; and

(E) the impacts of Tuskegee Airmen accomplishments on subsequent civil rights advances of the 1950's and 1960's.

(3) To recognize the strategic role of Tuskegee Institute (now Tuskegee University) in training the airmen and commemorating them at this historic site.

SEC. 303. ESTABLISHMENT OF TUSKEGEE AIRMEN NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE.

PUBLIC SCOPING

TUSKEGEE AIRMEN NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

Development Concept Plan and Environmental Assessment

Public Scoping Meeting – March 4, 2004

The National Park Service (NPS) plans to rehabilitate, preserve, and interpret the Moton Field Historic Complex at the Tuskegee Airmen National Historic Site (NHS). The NPS has been working with stakeholders to prepare a Development Concept Plan (DCP) that describes how this will be done. In accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), NPS is also preparing an Environmental Assessment (EA) for the Tuskegee Airmen NHS DCP. The purpose of the EA is to provide NPS decision-makers with a clear understanding of the potential effects of the proposed actions, and to include the public in the decision-making process.

NPS has worked closely with the public throughout the planning process. The site was established following the preparation of a Special Resource Study (SRS) in 1998 and subsequent legislation in 1999. This DCP / EA will further develop Alternative C as it was presented in the 1998 SRS. On March 4, 2004, NPS will hold a Public Scoping Meeting, to offer the public a chance to learn more about the project, ask questions, and interact with the project team. The Public Scoping Meeting is open to everyone and will be an open-house meeting. Comments on the proposed project are encouraged; comment cards will be available at the meeting for attendees to offer comments. Following the public meeting, the DCP / EA will be prepared and sent to the public for review.

The Moton Field Complex — located near the City of Tuskegee in Macon County, Alabama — commemorates and interprets the valuable contribution of the Tuskegee Airmen during World War II, including their initial training at Moton Field. Moton Field was the primary flight training facility for the Tuskegee Airmen who completed Air Corps training and were commissioned as pilots and officers during World War II.

Public Law 105-355 established the Tuskegee Airmen NHS on November 6, 1998, to:

- Commemorate and interpret the impact of the Tuskegee Airmen, including their training at Moton Field during World War II, the struggle for greater participation in the United States Armed Forces, and the impacts of the Tuskegee Airmen on civil rights advances, beginning with their success in leading the desegregation of the U.S. Armed Forces shortly after World War II; and
- Recognize the strategic role of Tuskegee Institute (now Tuskegee University) in training the airmen.

The current project will preserve and restore the site's historic structures and cultural landscape. The goal of landscape improvements will be to return the site to its appearance during the war years (1941-1945). The historic boundary of the site covers approximately 80 acres of Moton Field's approximately 780 acres.
